Prior to 2 November 1954, the Apetlon AAA camp was unoccupied and even unguarded. Some soldiers of the cadre personnel which was quartered in the former customs-houses on the northwestern perimeter of Apetlon occasionally entered the AAA camp southeast of Apetlon. The cadre personnel included a major about 50 years old who wore red-bordered black epaulets, was camp commander and lived in Apetlon with his wife for several years. Also included in the cadre personnel were a medical corps lieutenant and 20 soldiers who wore red-bordered black epaulets some with artillery insignia.

A tank truck on which soldiers wearing red-bordered black epaulets were occasionally observed working, was housed in the requisitioned, but unguarded garage in Apetlon. In an announcement of the Community of Apetlon, the Soviet camp commander warned the local population not to remove any items from the area of the AAA camp.
